Job Advert

Who we are

Be innovative and collaborative. Be a 'Strathclyder'.

We are the University of Strathclyde. Our vision is innovative and ground breaking, placing us amongst the world's leading international technological universities.

We are seeking to appoint extraordinary Professors / Readers who complement our strategic themes.

For more information visit the Strathclyde Global Talent Programme Website:

Our Department

The School of Government and Public Policy seeks an outstanding scholar in the field of international relations. The school has a dynamic cluster of emerging IR scholars, who work on various topics, often using quantitative methods, including international and civil conflict, the international political economy of climate change, and feminism and social movements. The candidate will engage with this group to develop our IR programme, particularly in regard to major, collaborative projects.

We are open with regard to area of research, but are particularly interested in international cooperation and/or conflict in the following substantive areas: climate change/environmental conflict, global health, cyber security, autonomous/AI weapons, and human rights. We also value the ability to lead interdisciplinary research projects – whether with the School's research centres in Energy Policy and European Policy, or with other Schools within the University (such as Information Science and Engineering) and beyond.

The opportunity

We would love to hear from you if you have an internationally recognised research portfolio in this area, are publishing in leading international journals, are actively pursuing funding whilst building impactful collaborative links with industrial and business partners and if you have a passion for progressing teaching and learning. In keeping with our commitment to equality and diversity, we encourage applications from all sections of the community, particularly those who can support our Athena SWAN activity, which inspires the advancement and representation of women in higher education. For more information on diversity and inclusion at Strathclyde, please see here.
